The use of social media is entrenched in our modern lives and progress in the information technology space is moving at an unfathomable rate. What does this mean for our lives as Muslims?

Mohammad Fauzan Noordin is a professor of Information and Communications Technology at the International Islamic University Malaysia. His talk will focus on how we can adapt Islamic adab (etiquette) to social media, effectively manage our time in the midst of social media and how we can utilise ICT and Social Media for our benefit, rather than harm.

Come along for an opportunity to engage in an important topic which affects our everyday lives as Muslims.

This is a free event, but donations to cover venue hire are welcome :)
